MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

Lizzie M. Wanyoike

As Albert Einstein once said, "the measure of intelligence is the ability to change." This statement would not have come at a better time than now. As an educationist, I am proud of the reforms the government is implementing to ensure that the education system that our children are taken through will stand the test of time.

Kenya's economy is rapidly changing fast. Most of the jobs currently performed in different sectors of the economy will be completely transformed by technology by 2030. We need to prepare our children for new possibilities. The 21st century demands citizens who are skilled.

The new system seeks to produce a child with relevant competencies to thrive in a rapid changing world. Key among the changes is inclusion of parental empowerment and engagement which was lacking in the 8-4-4 system.

Parents play an important role in the holistic growth and development of a child. In the traditional society, the extended family and community played a pivotal role in the education of the children. However, in the contemporary society the scenario has changed. Many parents are less involved in parenting and learning processes of their children due to a number of reasons such as changes in family structure, economic changes where parents have to work sometimes away from home, technological advancement where social media strongly influences the values and behaviors of family members.

The role of education is to impart relevant knowledge, skills, attitudes and values that will enable an individual to be a productive member of the society. At Lizzie Wanyoike Preparatory and Senior School we believe that Parents are the first educators, trainers and source of authority that a child interacts with. Empowerment and engagement of parents to skillfully identify a child's talent and potential, creates an enabling environment for the school to build on. I assure the parents who choose Lizzie Wanyoike Preparatory and Senior School that I am committed to quality education strongly grounded on values. Give us a chance to nurture your child at our modern Junior secondary School.
